Father Jacques Marquette
1968 • Scott 1356
(1637–1675)
In 1673 French explorer Father Jacques Marquette, along with Louis Jolliet, discovered the point where the Missouri River joins the Mississippi River. They were probably the first white people to see the mouth of the Missouri. This stamp shows the explorers traveling in their canoe, exploring the Western Territory.

Missouri — Early Exploration
Hernando de Soto first visited the Missouri area in 1541. The area was inhabited by the Osage and Missouri Indians. It was not until 1682 that the entire Mississippi Valley drainage area was claimed by the French, calling it the Louisiana Territory. French fur traders established Ste. Genevieve in 1735, and St. Louis was first settled in 1764.

In 1762, France secretly ceded the territory west of the Mississippi to Spain. In 1800 the Louisiana Territory (including the Missouri area) was retroceded to France, but in 1803 it passed to the United States as part of the Louisiana Purchase.

Daniel Boone
1968 • Scott 1357
(1734–1820)
In 1799, Daniel Boone and his family traveled by canoe down the Ohio River, to settle in the St. Louis area. Although he was once a magistrate in St. Charles County, Boone is best known as one of the most famous pioneers in U.S. history. Boone’s Pennsylvania rifle, powder horn, tomahawk, pipe, and knife are shown on this stamp which is part of the American Folklore Series.

Lewis & Clark Expedition Bicentennial Series
Meriwether Lewis
2004 • Scott 3855
(1774–1809)
Meriwether Lewis, a boyhood friend of Thomas Jefferson, was commissioned by the President to be the leader of the discovery expedition. Upon the return of the Corps, Lewis was appointed by Jefferson to be the Governor of the Louisiana Territory, which included present-day Missouri. He is shown on this stamp, which is part of the Expedition Bicentennial Series.

When Thomas Jefferson bought the Louisiana Purchase from the French in 1803, Missouri was part of that land. This stamp was issued to celebrate the 150th anniversary of that famed transaction.

In 1938 this stamp was released as part of the Presidential Series. In 1803 President Thomas Jefferson wrote to Meriwether Lewis instructing him to explore the Missouri River and “the interesting points of portage between the heads of the Missouri, and of the water offering the best communication with the Pacific ocean.”

Missouri — Westward Expansion

Oregon Trail
1993 • Scott 2747

The Oregon Trail was the only feasible way for settlers to get across the Rocky Mountains to northwest United States. This stamp celebrates the 150th anniversary when, in 1843 about a thousand pioneers left Missouri setting off the massive move west on the Oregon Trail.

Classic Collections: Legends of the West
Kit Carson
1994 • Scott 2869n

(1809–1868)
Christopher “Kit” Carson grew up near Franklin, Missouri. At the age of 16, he ran away to travel with westbound wagon trains. He then worked with mountain men where he became an experienced hunter and trapper. Carson guided three of John Fremont’s expeditions throughout the West.

Pony Express
1940 • Scott 894
1960 • Scott 1154

The Pony Express consisted of relays of men and horses carrying mail in specially designed saddlebags across a 1,966-mile trail from St. Joseph, Missouri, to Sacramento, California. Many of the riders were youth, often under 15 years of age, partly because of the requirement to weigh less than 125 pounds. Although it was only in existence for just over eighteen months, from April 3, 1860 to October 25, 1861, the Pony Express carried 34,753 pieces of mail and lost only one mail delivery.

Overland Mail
1958 • Scott 1120

In 1850, when California became a state, mail delivery was by ship, either around the southern tip of South America, or to Panama where it was carried across the isthmus then loaded onto another ship for delivery. Eight years later the first expedition of the Butterfield Overland Mail set out from Tipton, Missouri. This allowed the mail to be delivered across a 2,975 mile route — with a 25 day arrival at its destination. This stamp celebrates the 100th anniversary of the beginning of the initial run of Overland Mail.

Great River Road
1966 • Scott 1319

The Great River Road was developed to conserve the resources located along this mighty river. This stamp depicts the Road that is a gateway to the river valley’s great history. The 215 miles of the road which are located in Missouri tell the stories of the people who lived there before the U.S. became a nation, of the frontier-lands, of Mark Twain, and more.

Kansas City
1950 • Scott 994

The “Town of Kansas,” located at the confluence of the Missouri and Kansas rivers, became the launching point for travelers on the Santa Fe, Oregon, and California trails in the 1800s. It continues to be the central location for several railroads, and has become a natural hub for commerce, manufacturing, and distribution. This stamp celebrates the centennial of the town’s incorporation in 1850. (The Town of Kansas was renamed Kansas City in 1853.)

American Bicentennial State Flags Issues
Missouri
1976 • Scott 1656

This stamp shows the Missouri flag which was not adopted until 1913 — almost 92 years after becoming a state. Around a shield located in the center of the flag is a large star and 23 smaller stars, signifying Missouri as the 24th state to join the Union. A cloud around the large star represents the difficulties Missouri endured on its way to becoming that 24th state. The state's motto “Let the welfare of the people be the supreme law” is inscribed on a scroll within the shield.

State Birds & Flowers Issues
Missouri Eastern Bluebird and Red Hawthorn
1982 • Scott 1977

This stamp shows the Red Hawthorn that was declared Missouri's state flower in 1923. Also known as the “red haw” or “white haw,” more than 75 species of hawthorn grow in Missouri. Just four years later, the bluebird was adopted as the state bird.

Honeybee
1988 • Scott 2281

In 1988 this stamp showing a honeybee was issued by the Postal Service. Three years earlier, in 1985 the honeybee was designated as Missouri's state insect. This insect is common to Missouri and is cultivated by beekeepers for honey production. American Indians called the honeybee “white man's flies.”

Rural America Series
Angus and Longhorn Cattle
1973 • Scott 1504

Beef cattle are among the largest source of income for Missouri farmers. This stamp honors the 100th anniversary of the introduction of Angus bulls in the United States. Since shorthorn and longhorn cattle were already being raised in the Midwest, the black, hornless Angus were often called “freaks” by those who saw them.

Fish Issues
Catfish
1986 • Scott 2209

Missouri anglers love their catfish, and in 1997 the channel catfish was designated as the official fish of the state. This fish is unique in that it does not rely on sight to find its food, but uses its cat-like whiskers as it hunts for something to eat. This USPS issue shows a catfish, as it meanders through a freshwater stream.

Wonders of America Mississippi-Missouri
2006 • Scott 4065

The Mississippi-Missouri Rivers create the longest river system in the United States. With a length of 3,900 miles (6,300 km) it is the fourth longest river system in the world. It has an average water discharge of 572,000 cubic feet per second.

Greetings from America Missouri
2002 • Scott 3585

The Greetings from America stamp series features retro tourist postcards of the 1930s and 40’s. Missouri's design shows the St. Louis skyline and Gateway Arch, a lake scene in the Ozarks, and white hawthorn blossoms.

Wonders of America Gateway Arch
2006 • Scott 4044

The Gateway Arch, or Gateway to the West, is located in St. Louis, along the Mississippi River. Construction of the arch began in 1963 and was completed in 1965. This National Historic Landmark is the tallest manmade monument in the United States, standing at 630 feet (192m) tall.
